10 am April 1, 2000 Newcomb Hall Art Space Gallery

On April 1st, visiting professor, printmaker, and chief fool, Bogdan Achimescu, has decreed that his band of fellow fools and artists-in-training shall present for your pleasure, amusement, amazement and disbelief, more than 30 pieces of art in real and not-so-real space around, about, inside and outside

University grounds and its virtual spaces. A walking, skipping or running tour will commence from Newcomb Hall Art Space Gallery at 10:00 AM. Art will be viewed, questions will be answered, refreshments will be served, jokes may or may not be played. However, if the weather may make fools of us all, be prepared to walk, skip, or run in the rain. For, as only mad dogs and Englishmen go out in the noonday sun, tourists of all nationalities will be more than happy to wander in a downpour. (No offense toward dogs and Englishmen and they are invited as well.)
